Mandating an architecture paradigm shift in VoIP communications will drive up the cost of a benefecial technology that has been slowly adopted to begin with. Along with higher cost, the decreased privacy and security to the consumer will hurt this market.